In the Preschool Early Learning Community we passionately believe in the importance of the home-school partnership to support every child’s learning. We also understand that parents/carers want to know more about what their children are doing at school. Therefore, we have decided to trial a blog to share our learning with you. This will be linked on the school website. The blog would include photographs, work samples and short explanations of the learning occurring in preschool throughout the year.

To see a sample of a blog please have a look at our Paddock to Plate blog which can be found under the ‘Learning at Fraser’ tab on our school website: http://www.fraserps.act.edu.au/

We would greatly appreciate you completing the form below and returning it to your child’s teacher prior to the start of preschool, as we would like to commence the blog in February 2015. Without your permission we would be unable to include your child in the blog.

Regards,
Preschool Team

Fraser Primary School Preschool Early Learning Community Blog

Please select one of the following options:

☐ I give permission for my child’s photograph, first name and samples of their work to be posted on the Fraser Primary School Preschool Early Learning Community blog.

☐ I do not want my child’s photograph, name or work samples to be posted on the blog.

Child’s Name: ____________________________ Class: ____________________________

Name of Parent/Carer: _______________________ Signature: _______________________

Date: ___________________________________